Microsoft® CERTIFIED Technology Specialist

Double exam success

Date: Jan 2009

The Microsoft Certified Technology Specialist certifications enable professionals to target specific technologies and to distinguish themselves by demonstrating in-depth knowledge and expertise in their specialised technologies.

7 Layer is delighted to announce that two of its team members have achieved this recognised industry accreditation - MCTS - in their chosen speciality - Windows mobile 5.0. Richard Wood scored a perfect 100% in the module 'Implementing and Managing'. His accreditation entailed passing an exam that demonstrated a deep and broad understanding of designing, implementing and managing mobile infrastructures, mobile devices and mobile applications in a business environment. Anant Singh, an enthusiastic and proactive member of the software development team, chose the 'Applications' module and successfully proved his ability to build data-driven mobile applications by using the .NET Compact Framework, SQL Server 2005 Mobile Edition and Windows Mobile 5.0.

"As a company we fully appreciate the relevance of mobile technology in the cash logistics arena and we will continue the development of our capability in the Microsoft mobile competency. By constantly improving and updating our knowledge base in this and other technologies we can remain ahead of the game in the ever evolving IT environment in which we operate." says Managing Director, Lee Maisner.

7 Layer company directors pride themselves on their excellent staff retention rate and are dedicated to continue their strategy of ongoing staff development, a fact that was highlighted in 2008 through the company being awarded IIP certification. Staff at 7 Layer are actively encouraged to develop their skills through the allocation of a personal training budget, knowledge acquisition sessions and time-off to attend training courses or to pursue self-study. The promotion of a culture of continued personal improvement provides a motivational and stimulating working environment and in turn ensures the company is up to date with and competent in the leading edge technologies they work with. It is a shared company belief that not only will these qualifications further enhance an individuals' personal skill set and CV, they help to underpin and endorse the company's reputation as a highly respected specialist software solutions provider to the cash logistics industry.
